

AJIS

Australasian Journal of Information Systems

AAIS
Australasian Association for Information Systems

Editor in Chief

Expressions of Interest

The Australasian Association for Information Systems is seeking expressions of interest from suitably qualified academics to serve for a 3-year term as Editor-in-Chief of AJIS.

Applicants will be assessed against the following criteria:

Essential

1. Substantial experience in roles as Associate/Section Editor roles, Special Section/Issue editor, or Editor in Chief with an Information Systems journal
2. An Information Systems research background and established research track record
3. Sound understanding of the academic publishing process
4. Effective work management skills, including interpersonal skills
5. Currently employed in a research active position at a university in the Australasian region

Responsibilities

The successful applicant will be the predominate strategic and academic leader of AJIS, being responsible for:

- Overseeing the mission and scope of the journal
- Developing editorial boards and processes
- Overseeing the article review process
- Upholding the ethical and legal standards for scholarly publishing
- Promoting and improving the journal's reputation and significance
- Reporting on the journal

The role will have functional relationships with:

- the AJIS Production Editor
- the AJIS Technology-in-Chief
- the Australasian Association for Information Systems

Application

Queries can be directed to Rodney Clarke (President, AAIS), Sander Zwanenburg (Secretary, AAIS), Marta Indulska (Past President, AAIS) or Karlheinz Kautz (current EiC).

To apply, please email your resume and a one-page document outlining your fit with the position to secretary@aaisnet.org by 31/01/2024.